SightAware™ by Nonnanest | contactless infrared baby wellness monitor

ABOUT NONNANEST

Nonnanest, Inc. is a baby wellness technology company based in Charleston, SC, founded in 2024 by Nathan Overbey. The company's flagship product, SightAware™ by Nonnanest, is a contactless infrared baby wellness monitor that reads skin temperature from up to four feet away without requiring a wearable, WiFi, or a smartphone app. SightAware uses a direct, paired 2.4 GHz connection between the nursery camera and a dedicated 5-inch HD parent display, with no internet connection, cloud storage or user account. Patent pending. Priced at $329 with no subscription fees.

FOUNDER

Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO

Nathan designed SightAware after realizing no baby monitor on the market could track skin temperature contactlessly. He brings over 15 years of enterprise technology experience from Salesforce, ServiceNow, and Blackbaud, and holds an MBA from the University of South Carolina. Nathan is a father of two and the product's first real-world user.

FOUNDER QUOTES

Journalists are welcome to use these quotes attributed to Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO, Nonnanest.

ON THE ORIGIN

"When our son was six months old, he woke us up crying in the middle of the night. By the time we got to his room, it was obvious something was wrong. He was clearly unwell. I looked back at the monitor and all it could tell me was the room temperature. I kept thinking: how long had his skin temperature been rising while we slept? That was the moment I realized the market needed more awareness, not another camera."

Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO, Nonnanest

ON PRIVACY

"We made a deliberate decision to keep SightAware offline. Parents are concerned about connected devices and the risks that come with them. So the camera talks directly to its own parent screen, and nothing passes through WiFi, the internet or the cloud. Private by design, not by promise."

Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO, Nonnanest

ON THE APPROACH

"We're not trying to replace a parent's instinct. We're giving that instinct better information. SightAware is a gentle layer of awareness that works quietly in the background while your baby sleeps."

Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO, Nonnanest

ON DESIGN PHILOSOPHY

"We're not anti-technology. We're very pro-innovation. But here's what struck me: every wellness insight product on the market today requires an internet connection to function. We made a deliberate choice to go the other way. Every design decision started with one question: does this serve the parent, or does it serve the product?"

Nathan Overbey, Founder & CEO, Nonnanest

ON THE NAPPA RECOGNITION

"NAPPA reviewers are parents first, testing in their own homes with their own children. That is the audience we built SightAware for. The feedback that stood out most was not about the technology. It was about a monitor that fades into the background of a nursery and gives parents awareness without demanding their attention. That was the design brief from day one."
